Sell a Door Theatre Company present:
THE COMEDY OF ERRORS by William Shakespeare

Produced by David Hutchinson
Directed by Bryn Holding

"We are seeing the future of theatre, and what a future it is" FRINGE REVIEW

Award winning Sell a Door Theatre Company return to the Greenwich Playhouse to start their 2011 season with Shakespeare's shortest and most farcical of plays 'The Comedy of Errors' this spring.

"If you can't get a ticket to see Judi Dench in A Midsummer Night's Dream at the Rose Theatre, then Twelfth Night at Greenwich Playhouse offers an exuberant alternative" - The Stage on Twelfth Night

The scene is set...A father, in search of his lost son, is sentenced to death! He is granted a single day to find the money to save his life!

Cue the arrival of two sets of estranged twins: Antipholus of Syracuse and his servant, Dromio of Syracuse arrive on an island, which turns out to be the home of their twin brothers. When they encounter the friends and families of their twins, a catalogue of confusions ensue, centered around constant mistaken identity this play contains wrongful beatings, near-seduction, an arrest, as well as accusations of infidelity, theft, madness and questions of being possessed by the devil?!!

Sell a Door Theatre Company welcomes back Bryn Holding as director (previous credits with Sell a Door include Twelfth Night) and Adrian Gee as designer (previous credits with Sell a Door include The Railway Children and Dracula).
